SMALL BUSINESS ROCKS

Warren Buffett had it right when he committed to giving away more than half his money to charity. "If you’re in the luckiest one percent of humanity, you owe it to the rest of humanity to think about the other 99 percent.”

And, indeed, 86% of the $316 billion giving reported in 2012, is by individuals, says Giving USA, an arm of Indiana University. Buffett’s motivation seems to be about social justice, but it is also about social good. He appears to be a guy who believes in creating opportunity for others and in doing so, fuels ideas, innovations and projects that ultimately have an economic impact on society.

In a new book, entitled “Why Philanthropy Matters”, Zoltan J. Acs advocates that the benefit of philanthropy is that it nurtures innovation and entrepreneurship which is essential for prosperity. I thought about this connection between entrepreneurship and philanthropy as I pondered a new national study put out by Americans for the Arts in which some 600 corporations of all sizes were surveyed. Bearing in mind that corporate funds are only 6% of the total giving pie, on the bright side, the survey reports that corporate giving to the arts from 2009 through 2012 is up by 18% reversing some, but certainly not all of the losses during the height of the recession. That is heartening.

What got my head spinning, however, is that 82% of this support comes from businesses with less that $50 million in revenue. Even more startling is that 47% of that support comes from corporations with less than $1 million in revenue. Perhaps it’s wishful thinking on my part, but this focus by small business on local markets does seem to underscore the affinity that already exists between the arts and entrepreneurship based in part upon the fact that training in the arts leads to solving problems creatively. Or, as Warren Buffett said it: “Someone’s sitting in the shade today because someone planted a tree a long time ago.”

Mamaroneck Artists Guild Presents Summer Exhibition

Celebrate the summer with members of the Mamaroneck Artists Guild at PP&F — a new exhibition of works in printmaking, photography and fibers. On view beginning Wednesday, July 17, and continuing through August 3, the group exhibition features an eclectic mix of unique and affordable works of art. Visitors can meet and mingle with the artists at an opening reception on Saturday, July 20, from 3-5pm. The gallery is open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 12-5pm, and admission is free. For more info, visit: www.mamaroneckartistsguild.org.

Caramoor Named Among CNN’s “Amazing Outdoor Music Venues”

CNN recently revealed its list of “amazing outdoor music venues,” naming Caramoor Center for Music and the Arts in Katonah as one of the eight best destinations for outdoor music in the world. Caramoor was chosen among the likes of venues in Berlin, Scotland, among others, including Colorado’s legendary Red Rocks Amphitheatre. The article on CNN.com noted that the Mediterranean-style Caramoor estate, originally established as a weekend getaway in the 1920s by Walter and Lucie Rosen, held three public concerts in 1946 that eventually blossomed into Caramoor’s Summer Music Festival, which has since grown significantly in size and reputation. This year’s festival, which includes classical, opera, jazz, American roots and Broadway music, runs through August 7. For the full festival schedule, visit: www.caramoor.org.

The Hudson River Museum Amphitheater Opens July 4th

The Hudson River Museum (HRM) Amphitheater, an open-air performance space located in Trevor Park, adjacent to HRM on Warburton Avenue, will hold its inaugural concert on July 4: a celebration of American music, performed by the Yonkers Philharmonic. The 400-seat amphitheater overlooks the river and the Palisades, and will showcase a varied series of programs in its first season, including music, film and drama. Amphitheater programs in July and August, all free, will take place on Friday and Saturday evenings. During these months, HRM will also present Family Summer Sunday Programs in the amphitheater. For a full listing of summer events, visit: www.hrm.org.

BARE: A Pop Opera

The White Plains Performing Arts Center (WPPAC) and Harrison Summer Theatre will present the Westchester Regional Premiere of the 2004 version of the musical BARE: A Pop Opera from July 26-28. Directed by WPPAC Producing Artistic Director Jeremy Quinn with musical direction by Stephen Ferri, the musical tells a poignant coming-of-age tale of five high school seniors at a Catholic boarding school. The heart of the story focuses on a relationship between two boys, a socially awkward loner and a popular jock. We follow their struggle as they try to keep their relationship alive and hidden, and see how their love affects those around them. BARE is a beautiful story of challenging adults and religion, and discovering who you are. Tickets and more info: www.wppac.com.

ArtsWestchester Welcomes New Board Members

ArtsWestchester welcomes four new board members, all of whom bring valuable expertise and a commitment to the arts.

Michael Minihan, a Partner and Co-Founder of WTP Advisors, has extensive experience with complex international tax matters, including public accounting and private industry. Minihan joins ArtsWestchester’s board as its new Treasurer.

Brian Carcaterra, Senior Vice President of CBRE’s Westchester/Fairfield office, has a background in investment sales, as well as agency and tenant representation on a local, national and global level. Before joining CBRE, he was an analyst at Morgan Stanley and a Principal at Newmark Grubb Knight Frank.

A longtime ArtsWestchester supporter and well respected former county legislator, Martin Rogowsky is the President of a real estate management company in Port Chester. Previously, he has also served as Chairman of the Westchester County Public Utility Service Agency.

David Price is a Managing Director and partner at Clarefeld, a leading wealth management firm in Westchester. With extensive experience providing investment advisory and financial planning services, Price serves on the firm’s Executive Committee and manages its Family Office division.

Anna Damiano, Community Banking President, Wells Fargo, and ArtsWestchester board member recently presented ArtsWestchester with a significant donation at its annual board meeting.

Placemaking: A Talk with Harriet Senie

ArtsWestchester’s summer exhibition, Placemaking: Re-Envisioning White Plains, on view through July 13 asks the question: What is public art and what could it do for the City of White Plains?

Joining the conversation was esteemed professor and scholar on public art, Harriet F. Senie, who led a panel of distinguished Westchester community leaders on the evening of June 19. An audience of artists, civic leaders, and residents asked thought-provoking questions and shared their personal experiences with public art.
ArtsWestchester’s 22nd annual golf tournament took place on June 17. Players tested their skills on the championship greens of Wykagyl Country Club and raised almost $60,000 for the organization. Great golf, good food and friendly competition made for another successful event to help support the arts.
LYNDHURST SUMMER EXHIBITION:

Three Parlors

Who would have thought parlor suites could encapsulate the essence of American national identity? Lyndhurst accomplishes this with its Three Parlors exhibition, on display until the end of the year. Over the past 175 years, the estate has accumulated the furnishings of each of the three families who have occupied the house, now showcasing them in three parlor suites from the families’ respective years of residency.

Through the shifts in style and décor from one suite to the next, the exhibition reflects three major socioeconomic changes that took place in the U.S. during the 19th century – a pivotal period in America’s search for its national identity: the opening of the Erie Canal, the end of the Civil War, and the start of the Gilded Age.

Ultimately, Three Parlors represents not only a look at the 1800s but the ongoing evolution of America’s identity as defined by its material possessions. For more information, visit: www.lyndhurst.org.

NEUBERGER MUSEUM EXHIBITION:

Coney Island Maze

Rickety wooden tracks ascend into the unknown. Empty ticket booths stand silent vigil in a darkness fractured only by the scant light of naked bulbs hanging from the ceiling. Braced against a rock wall, a perimeter of fences and locked gates secure this image of desolation for visitors of the Neuberger Museum of Art at Purchase College. This haunting Coney Island Maze exhibition is on display through September 15. A monumental thirteen-year project by veteran sculptor Donna Dennis, this exhibition is the ghost of an amusement park modeled after the iconic Coney Island Cyclone. But to Dennis, the piece means much more. Initially a study of architectural complexity and the psychological tenor of abandonment, the sculpture shifted in Dennis’ eyes after 9/11. “I began to think seriously about mortality,” she said. “When the Towers went down…when there was so much talk of security, the fences began to mean something to me.” For Dennis, the shaky wooden tracks became a metaphor for human fragility, and the sculpture’s closed perimeter a loving, protective gesture. HORACE GREELEY HOUSE:
Downton Chappy
It’s official. The Crawley Family has arrived in Chappaqua. Their clothes have, anyway. Through January 15, the Horace Greeley House is holding a costume exhibition, Downton Chappy, based on the hit British series Downton Abbey, bringing the best of post-Edwardian fashion to the Westchester public. From lace to satin, embroidered dresses to flowing gowns, the display comprises some of the most exquisite fabrics from the New Castle Historical Society’s extensive costume collection. They say history repeats itself. Here it does, in the sense that the costumes embody a bygone chic that may in fact appeal to modern fashion sensibilities, but also in what the clothing represents. In their design, the clothes recall a very particular period in history filled with social dynamism and political intrigue, much of which unfolds in the smoke-filled rooms of the aristocratic high society. It’s our contemporary fascination with celebrities and politicians all over again, except directed more than a century in the past. Downton Chappy captures the guilty pleasure we find in extravagance, something the show does as well. For more info, visit: www.newcastlehs.org.

JAY ART CENTER:
The Landmarks Of New York
An impressive collection of 90 photographs, all black and white, line the newly configured gallery space at the century-old Carriage House at John Jay Homestead. New York City is on display. From the iconic Little Red Lighthouse to Rockefeller Center to the dazzling interiors of the Paradise Loews Theatre, the Jay Art Center’s Landmarks of New York exhibition spotlights the architectural diversity and rich history of the beloved city.

Each building featured, some dating back as far as the 1600s, has been carefully maintained through the efforts of advocacy and historical preservation. Presented in chronological order, the architecture in the photographs traverses a period of over three hundred years, effectively documenting the evolution of the city while also revealing the passion and dedication that went into keeping its historical legacy alive.

Landmarks of New York will be on display through September 1. For more information, visit: www.jay-center.org.

New Rochelle Public Library presents a vibrant lineup of cultural music and dance performances this month in its Ossie Davis Theater. On July 9, travel to the Andes with Andinay, a five-piece band with roots in Ecuador, Bolivia and Peru. The band creates a crowd-pleasing blend of sound from centuries-old instruments. On July 16, the Russian ensemble Barynya will perform a spirited sampler of Russian dance, music and songs. Renowned belly dancer Aszmara performs to the folkloric sounds of Arabia and the Middle East on July 23. Audience members on July 30 can get a captivating taste of Arabia and the Middle East; July 28: a musical groove, delivering Michael Jackson's iconic discography with the same fun-loving funk that made him a sensation 30 years ago; while the Rat Race Choir dazzles with its distinctive brand of progressive rock. More traditional ensembles are featured as well, among them the Westchester Band, led by conductor Alan Hollander, and St. Luke's Chamber Ensemble, whose repertoire ranges from Beethoven to early jazz.

All this is merely a preview of what Music in the Air has to offer. The full events listing can be found at www.artsw.org/music-in-the-air, where a few clicks of the mouse can unfold the county's entire music scene before your eyes. By promoting the county's affordable, high-quality events in one centralized location, ArtsWestchester furthers its mission to make the arts available and accessible to county residents. It's classic ArtsWestchester, and a phenomenal way to plan your summer music experience.
