In the wake of the Orlando tragedy, I ask myself again a question that I ask myself frequently: “What is there about art that makes us turn to it in times of tragedy?” Governor Cuomo turned to the arts this week when he announced a million dollar art project to honor “all victims of hate, intolerance and violence.” It is perhaps, as the poet Hafiz wrote in the 14th century, because “art offers an opening for the heart…” as it helps us heal from the unfathomable and the incomprehensible. The acclaimed acting teacher Stella Adler once opined that “life beats down and crushes the soul, and art reminds you that you have one.” That is why we stand in awe at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, and why we tremble when we see the AIDS Memorial Quilt (The Names Project). Remember also the power of Christo’s The Gates and DeNiro’s Tribecca Film Festival to quell the fear of New Yorkers and bring them back to their city in the wake of 9/11. These works are part of our collective healing process. They presented us with a path back to wholeness and love for each other and the world. In our work at ArtsWestchester, we strive daily to put into words the meaning and the power of the arts, its capacity to bring us together, to memorialize the things we care about, to express shared ideals and values, and yes, to be there when it is the only way to move beyond tragedy.
National Endowment for the Arts Honored With Tony Award

The Tony Awards, presented by The American Theatre Wing (ATW) and The Broadway League (TBL), recently honored the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) with a 2016 Special Tony Award at its 70th annual event. Now celebrating its 50th anniversary, the NEA is the independent federal agency that funds and supports opportunities for Americans to participate in, and have access to, the arts. According to ATW President Heather Hitchens and TBL President Charlotte St. Martin: “Over the past 50 years, since its inception, [the NEA] has funded 18 Tony Award-winning plays and 15 Tony Award-winning musicals, not to mention offering vital support to hundreds of theatre professionals. The NEA also supports ArtsWestchester’s efforts and continually helps to keep the arts alive in Westchester.

New Sarah Lawrence Dance Company Director Appointed

Dancer and choreographer John Jasperse has been named Director of the Sarah Lawrence Dance Program, which has yielded notable dancers and choreographers, including Viola Farber, a founding member of Merce Cunningham Dance Company, and Bessie Schönberg, for whom the New York Dance and Performance Awards (“The Bessies”) are named. Jasperse, who graduated from the program four years ago, has since established John Jasperse Projects. He said: “Sarah Lawrence College (SLC) has a long and illustrious history as a leader of progressive education... I look forward to ensuring that SLC continues to be an institution where dance – and its connection to other artistic and intellectual fields – is vital and thrives in the 21st century.”

WORD Exhibition Extended

Hudson Valley Center for Contemporary Art has extended its WORD exhibition. Initially slated to close on July 31, the juried exhibition will now remain on view through December 17. Featuring talented regional artists who prominently feature a word, or words, in their works, WORD addresses how those words are used as a contemporary art form. The recent arrival of an additional work to the gallery, Untitled by Indonesian artist Yunizar, completes the exhibition. For more info on WORD, visit: hvcca.org.

Hoff-Barthelson Appoints Ken Cole as New Director

Hoff-Barthelson Music School (HBMS) has announced the appointment of Ken Cole as its new Executive Director. The change will come following the retirement of Joan Behrens Bergman, who held the position for 17 years. Cole will help bring the school through its next phase of growth and development while “ensuring that HBMS continues to nurture the development of students and the community for years to come.” His most recent positions include his role as Vice President of Learning and Leadership Development at the League of American Orchestras, and as Associate Director of the National Guild for Community Arts Education.

ArtWestchester & Memorial Sloan Kettering Embark on Arts for Healing Partnership

Memorial Sloan Kettering (MSK) is committed to integrating art into its mission of “providing state-of-the-art science and clinical research in support of cancer treatment.” In 2013, MSK began its Outpatient Art Program, now a signature feature of their New York City Metro area facilities, including Brooklyn, Manhattan and New Jersey locations. Beginning this summer, ArtWestchester will curate exhibitions for MSK’s Westchester facility in Harrison. Featuring Westchester-regional artists, the installations will rotate twice per year. This partnership between MSK and ArtWestchester highlights a growing trend in healthcare to approach healing holistically through the arts.

Sleepy Hollow Students Unveil Sculptures

Sleepy Hollow Middle School and ArtWestchester recently unveiled site-specific sculptures created by the School’s 7th and 8th grade students. The sculptures are a culmination of their work with teaching artists Pedro Nel Osino, Marie McCann-Barab, John Rizzo and Nancy Maloy. The program encouraged teamwork through a shared art-making experience that was designed to improve communication skills and build confidence. This program was made possible with funds from Westchester Community Foundation-Feldman Fund and UCLA Center X through the US Department of Education in partnership with the Sleepy Hollow School District and ArtWestchester.
ArtsWestchester Welcomes New President, Board Members, Officers

Robert W. Roth, a retired principal with the firm JMC Consulting, assumed the role of Board President of ArtsWestchester at its annual meeting on June 8, 2016. Roth is a licensed professional engineer who has been recognized by the International Council of Shopping Centers for his expertise. He has more than 40 years of site planning and engineering experience with a vast array of clients including national retailers, developers, builders, institutions and municipalities. Roth is an expert in site design, civil engineering, traffic and parking, storm water management, and a host of other environmental issues. In addition to serving as an expert witness, he has presented numerous projects for approval to agencies and community groups. He has been an active and dedicated board member at ArtsWestchester since 2006, sharing his professional skills on the Building Committee, as well as the Development and Executive Committees. Roth brings a passion for the arts and his belief in the mission of ArtsWestchester to his new role as President.

ArtsWestchester is grateful to Froma Benerofe, who has completed two terms as Board President after leading ArtsWestchester through its 50th anniversary and contributing to its vision for the future as the organization embarks on a capital campaign. Though she is a busy Clinical Social Worker, Benerofe always finds time for ArtsWestchester business, particularly issues involving the Grants Committee, which she previously chaired. She is a dynamic leader and she will fortunately continue to play an active role as a co-Chair of the Capital Campaign.

Stepping into the role of Executive Vice President is Michael Minihan, an international tax advisor and Founder of WTP Advisors (now Ryan) who served as Treasurer and member of the Finance Committee for the past two years. With experience that includes public accounting and private industry, he was formerly serving some of the world’s largest companies at PricewaterhouseCoopers in New York, where he assisted with complex quantitative international tax matters. Since joining the board in 2013, he has served on the audit, finance, and investment committees of ArtsWestchester.

The organization also welcomes four board members who will each serve 3-year terms. All four new members bring unique talents and creative energy to ArtsWestchester’s Board of Trustees:

Nick Moore is a creative director at the marketing and branding organization Roar Groupe. His work includes campaigns for Fortune 500 companies, as well as previous pro-bono work for ArtsWestchester. Moore was part of the team that created and developed the “grey crayon box” campaign for ArtsWestchester using the tagline: “Imagine Westchester Without the Arts.” Some of Moore’s most notable clients include: Coca Cola, Levi’s, Dell, Reebok, Range Rover, Citibank, Abbott Laboratories, Nationwide Insurance, Nokia, Microsoft, Chevron, Calvin Klein and HP.

Nataly Ritter, an arts patron and world traveler, formerly held positions at Young & Rubicam, BBD&O and McCann Ericson, and was a writer on the MGM film The Man from U.N.C.L.E. She has been active with the Museum of Modern Art, is a former board member and docent at the Neuberger Museum of Art, and is a recently elected board member at ArtsWestchester. Nataly lives in Mamaroneck with her husband Toby – both are world travelers and avid sailors with Nataly serving as “first mate” on all expeditions.

George Troyano, President and Publisher of The Journal News, is a sales and marketing executive who is leading the news organization into the digital age. His strategic vision has been transformational for The Journal News as a digital first media operation. Troyano was formerly with Review Publishing in the Philadelphia market, and spent eight years in New York doing business and marketing for The Village Voice. In the words of Gannett president when Troyano was appointed to his current position: “George brings a lot of media experience, a love for the market, and a determination to deliver value and win for our customers.”

Francis Corcoran has joined the Board for the 2016-17 term as a representative of the Westchester Board of Legislators. Legislator Corcoran is a Republican Conservative representing District 2 which covers Bedford, Mount Kisco, Pound Ridge, Lewisboro, North Salem and part of Somers. He is a first-time legislator whose prior experience in the financial industry will be an asset to ArtsWestchester.
Public Art Installation Enlivens Mount Vernon Public Library Façade

ArtsWestchester, in partnership with the Mount Vernon Public Library (MVPL) and with support from the New York State Assembly, the City of Mount Vernon and Westchester County, recently unveiled a new public art commission that has been four years in the making. Seeing the Wind, a site-specific work created by Brooklyn artist Rochelle Shicoff for the entrance of MVPL’s “Children’s Room,” provides an inviting entrance for visitors of the library, as well as a colorful addition for passersby to delight in. The work was chosen by a panel from more than 50 proposals.

CEO Janet T. Langsam notes: “New York State Assemblyman Gary Pretlow was instrumental in making our vision for the library a reality by securing a $50K grant through New York States’ Community Capital Assistance Program.”

Eleven 13-foot enamel-painted ‘totems’, which took Shicoff three-and-a-half months to paint, are each topped with a golden-winged animal that turns in the wind. This component of the installation adds an interactive and playful element for onlookers. Each totem is a striking pattern of carefully planned colors by Shicoff to enliven the landscape of the community and the façade of the library building for years to come. MVPL President Oscar Davis, Jr. explains: “Visual art is just as important to the development of a healthy community as is music and the performing arts... It is our hope that when people view [this work], it will inspire them to express themselves through art and reading.”

New York State Council on the Arts Visits Westchester County

Historic Hudson Valley recently hosted a gathering/open forum to discuss New York State Council on the Arts (NYSCA) and its support for Westchester County’s vibrant cultural community. The event featured remarks by newly-appointed Chair of NYSCA Barbaralee Diamonstein-Spielvogel. In her remarks, Diamonstein said: “Our meetings in Westchester are a commemoration and recognition of community and collaboration; a coming together of representatives of the tens-of-thousands of New Yorkers on whose behalf, and in whose interests, our varied arts communities work… A salute also to ArtsWestchester – with whom NYSCA is proud to partner – whose remarkable leadership and vision has developed it to a force not only in Westchester, but throughout New York State.” The event was attended by Westchester legislators, members of the New York Senate, mayors, members of the New York State Assembly and arts organizations from Westchester and neighboring counties (Bronx, Putnam, Rockland and Dutchess). In attendance were Senator Andrea Stewart-Cousins, Tarrytown Mayor Drew Fixell, Legislator Catherine Parker, Assemblyman Steve Otis, Assemblyman David Buchwald, Assemblyman Tom Abinanti, Assemblywoman Sandy Galef, Assemblywoman Shelley Mayer, Maryann Oros (representing Assemblyman Terrance Murphy) and Natasha Caputo (representing County Executive Rob Astorino).

Inflatable Sculptures Take Over Hudson River Museum

Giant inflatable tongues protrude from the entranceway of Hudson River Museum this summer. In the first large-scale solo exhibition by Jimmy Kuehnle, witty site-specific sculptures invade both inside and outside of the Museum’s space. Giant yellow lungs “breathe” by inflating and deflating; a three-story-high creature creates playful interaction as guests walk between its legs; fabric bubbles emerge from tower windows, functioning as an illuminated clock that blinks with the changing of hours. Conceived and constructed by Kuehnle, the massively-scaled structures elicit a response from visitors as they are forced to confront the works. According to Kuehnle, “the scale [of the work] is intended to overwhelm and encompass the viewer and take on a dialogue with the architecture and environment of the museum.” Each new piece, placed in each new location, challenges the artist as well. Depending on the space, the works require new construction and problem solving, challenging him with new techniques, technology, weather and wind. Tongue in Cheek: The Inflatable Art of Jimmy Kuehnle is on view through September 18. For more info, visit: hrm.org.

transFORM Gallery Presents Animal-Themed Rescue Me Exhibition

Beginning July 9, transFORM Gallery presents Rescue Me, a juried exhibition in collaboration with the Humane Society of Westchester (HSW). The animal-themed show represents both domestic and wild animals, from kittens to lions, through 15 artists whose works embody a variety of mediums, including sculpture, mixed media, oil on canvas, pastel and more. A committee at transFORM selected several artists from an open call to join the roster of the Gallery’s standing artists. The result is a show that brings attention to the treatment of animals. HSW’s mission creates transitional homes for stray, injured and abused animals until they are able to place the animals in a permanent home. An opening reception on July 9 offers activities like “Cats and Kittens Meet & Greet.” Rescue Me will be on view through September 10. For more info, visit: transformgallery.com.

Bullseye Glass Gallery Presents Cosmic Pessimism

Painter, sculptor and glass artist Michael Endo creates a world where the familiar becomes unfamiliar. Bullseye Glass presents a solo exhibition of his work in Cosmic Pessimism, on view through September 10. Using kilnformed glass, cast glass, found objects and oil paint, Endo constructs atmospheric and unexpected formations in the environments within his paintings and sculptures. Works on view include alternative environments like Exodus, a panel oil painting of two figures running from a wooded area between one house that is under construction and another that is being demolished; and Crux, a glass work featuring a cross configuration created by fallen trees that are leaning against one another. Endo explains that his exhibited works are random and innocuous “but gain importance as [the viewer] begins to assign meaning to them.” For more info, visit: bullseyeglass.com.
Jacob Burns Film Center Presents the Sounds of Summer with Music Film Series

Throughout July and August, Jacob Burns Film Center is bringing the stage to the big screen with its music documentary film series. The “Sounds of Summer” series takes a behind-the-scenes look at some of music’s greatest stars, introduces emerging artists and explores experimental music projects. Magical Mystery Tour will have guests dancing in their seats as Beatles expert Scott Freiman deconstructs the film with a multimedia presentation (July 6); The Music of Strangers documents cellist Yo-Yo Ma’s Silk Road Ensemble, a project that brings together innovative performers represent traditions from around the world (July 18); based near one of the largest landfills in South America, the Recycled Orchestra performs beautiful music on instruments that are made from other people’s garbage (Landfill Harmonic, Aug. 9); and tributes to recently-deceased rock icons David Bowie (Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders From Mars, July 19) and Prince (Purple Rain, Aug. 12-16) will present their forays into film. With more than 20 films in total, the series kicks off on July 6. For more info, visit: burnsfilmcenter.org.

Little Radicals Theatrics’ Presents a Retelling of Oliver!

This summer, Little Radicals Theatrics retells the iconic story of orphan Oliver Twist in its production of Lionel Bart’s musical theater classic, Oliver! Based on the dark novel by Charles Dickens and directed by Michael J. Mirra, this performance begins with 70-year-old Fagin in a prison cell before his execution. Fagin, a career criminal that takes in orphans like Oliver and teaches them to pick pockets for him, is now haunted by the people and events that led to his inevitable demise. Starting on July 21, audiences can see the ensemble cast’s rendition of this timeless story of the young orphan boy navigating through London’s world of crime. Performances will be held through July 24 at the Grinton I Will Library in Bronxville. For more info, visit: littleradicaltheatrics.com.

Washington Heights Comes to White Plains

This summer, Stage 2 at White Plains Performing Arts Center (WPPAC) presents In the Heights. The Tony- and Grammy Award-winning, and Pulitzer Prize-nominated, show was the first Broadway musical by Lin-Manuel Miranda, writer and actor of the hit sensation Hamilton. Set in New York City’s Washington Heights neighborhood, the musical tells the story of a vibrant community on the brink of change and full of hope. Through the narrative of several generations, characters sing, rap and dance the rhythms of their culture as they explore the traditions (both good and bad) of their predecessors. Stage 2 is a WPPAC program created to give college, graduate school and community performers the opportunity to work in a professional theatre under the guidance of professional artists. Performances take place from July 29 and August 7. For more info, visit: wppac.com.
India Center of Westchester presents Pandit Birju Maharaj, Kathak Dance & Romeo and Juliet

India Center of Westchester and the Lipilekha Bangla Association present legendary North Indian classical dancer Pandit Birju Maharaj and his dancers in a performance of Romeo and Juliet. In this Baithak (social gathering), Maharaj, an internationally recognized storyteller, singer and dancer, will entertain with a Kathak, one of the eight major forms of classical dance in India. Following Maharaj’s performance, his ensemble of dancers and musicians will present Shakespeare’s immortal love story, Romeo and Juliet, choreographed for the first time in the classical style of Kathak. Young dancers of Indian origin from Westchester will train with Maharaj and join the dance ensemble in this first-of-a-kind historical performance. The show, supported by ArtsWestchester’s Arts Alive Grant, which are made possible by the New York State Council for the Arts. It will be presented at the Tarrytown Music Hall on Saturday July 16 at 7pm. For more info, visit: indiacenter.us

An Evening of Ballads, Poetry and Folk Music with John Perrault

Hudson Valley Writers’ Center presents an evening of original folk music and reading by balladeer, poet, author and songwriter John Perrault. Perrault’s work, such as Jefferson’s Dream and The Ballad of Louis Wagner and Other New England Stories in Verse, celebrates the stories of New England characters and historical figures. He doesn’t shy away from political views and contemporary topics, but instead uses them to urge his audience to consider the things in their lives that make each of them human. A former Poet Laureate of Portsmouth, NH from 2003-5, Perrault’s selection of songs and poems on July 17, at the Center’s location in Sleepy Hollow, will draw on a wide range of oral and written traditions. For more info, visit: writerscenter.org.

Clay Art Center Presents Freshly Funk

Through September 27, Clay Art Center (CAC) presents Freshly Funk, a solo exhibition by emerging New York artist Lauren Skelly. Skelly, whose work was included in CAC’s regional juried Tristate of Mind exhibition, was then awarded this solo show by a sub-committee. The abstract sculptures in Freshly Funk, including a site-specific installation, observe landscape, texture, color and form by blending and collaging abstract forms. She explains: “I make intentional decisions regarding textural surfaces, glazes, slips and clay applications… seeking to push an uneasy tension between materials and form.” In breaking the accepted rules of sculpture, she creates new perspectives of the elements used, and emulated, in the work. An opening reception will take place on July 23. For more info, visit: clayartcenter.org.

The City of White Plains: “Neighborhood Nights”

This summer, the City of White Plains presents family-friendly activities for the community at several neighborhood parks. Creative events, from musical performances to children’s programs and movies, will be offered on select weekday evenings beginning July 11. Families and kids are invited to explore a petting zoo, watch screenings of various films, such as Kung Fu Panda 3, and participate in a variety show by Ms. Liz, who combines circus arts, physical comedy and beautiful costumes. This program also offers a performance of the Shakespearian comedy As You Like It, and live music from FDR, Jazmyn duo, and more. Dates vary through August 10 at 7pm and take place at varying White Plains parks. For more info, visit: cityofwhiteplains.com.

Hudson River Museum: Amphitheater Event Series

From live Afro-Peruvian jazz to traditional Irish folk music, the stage of Hudson River Museum’s outdoor amphitheater in Yonkers will come alive this summer. From July 8 through August 20, performances by Middle Eastern belly dancers, a comedy troupe and New Orleans-based Stooges Brass Band featuring multi-instrumentalist Trombone Shorty will light up the stage and energize its audience. Family-friendly films like Singin’ In the Rain and Inside Out hold the attention of children and adults alike, and Hudson Valley Shakespeare Festival’s presentation of an all-female cast will offer a new perspective on Macbeth. All performances take place at 8pm at John F. Kennedy Drive and Trevor Park. For more info, visit: hrm.org

New Rochelle Council on the Arts: “Emil Paolucci Summer Sounds Concert Series”

Every Wednesday night throughout the summer, guests can enjoy the breeze of the Long Island Sound while grooving to an eclectic menu of live music performances. Guests can bring a picnic, or enjoy tastings from local food trucks for the “Emil Paolucci Summer Sounds” concert series, presented by New Rochelle Council on the Arts. With an upgraded sound system and lighting, the band shell at Hudson Park is newly primed to host a lineup that includes authentic bluegrass from the Feinberg Brothers; a selection of opera, operetta and Broadway tunes from New Rochelle Opera; jazz standards from Glenda Davenport and her quartet; pop rock from the 80s through the 80s and more.
