Sad News From The New York Times

by Janet Langsam, ArtsWestchester CEO

“There is an explosion of diverse, inclusive and compelling cultural events and venues in our county. Reporting on them is important ... [and] builds participation in community life.”

We are deeply saddened by this announcement from The New York Times:

“As of August 29th, The Times will discontinue the regional editions of the Metropolitan section of The New York Times, which includes Connecticut, Westchester, Long Island and New Jersey. Those areas will receive the Metropolitan edition that currently circulates in the five boroughs.” This news hit arts organizations in the Tri-state region like a thunder bolt.

For many years, the metropolitan region has benefitted from The Times' reviews of local theater productions, critics' insights into art exhibitions and general coverage of arts and culture in our region. It is the major way that nearly 500,000 households get their information on what to do and where to go not only in Westchester but in the entire Tri-State region. While the print sections may be no longer economically viable, the coverage is vital. Arts and business leaders are urging The Times to consider maintaining or expanding its coverage of these activities in the digital arena.

There is an explosion of diverse, inclusive and compelling cultural events and venues in our county. Reporting on them is important to families, youth and seniors because it builds participation in community life. It strengthens the American ideal that the arts are for everyone. Moreover, the arts and culture bring people together and encourage civic dialogue.

ArtsWestchester, along with business and cultural leaders from Westchester, the Hudson Valley, Connecticut and New Jersey, has asked The Times to find a way, perhaps digitally, to continue to report on news from our region. If you believe as we do that The Times' coverage is important, let us hear from you at jlansam@artswestchester.org, or reach out to The Times: Public Editor Liz Spayd (public@nytimes.com, publiceditor.blog.nytimes.com) or Metro Editor Wendell Jamieson (metro@nytimes.com).

Jacob Burns Film Center Program Receives Award at The White House

A civil rights-focused curriculum created by Jacob Burns Film Center (JBFC), in partnership with Brooklyn Historical Society, was recently recognized at the Student and Emerging Film Competition Awards ceremony at the White House. The ceremony was part of the March on Washington Film Festival, which communicates the untold stories, and celebrates unsung heroes of the civil rights movement. JBFC's "Created Equal" program was acknowledged for conveying the powerful role of media in telling the story of civil rights. The program was designed to help students understand how past civil rights are relevant to recent history, and how media can advance social change. It also empowers educators with professional development training to support the implementation of the curriculum.

Artwork by Mental Health Recipients to be Exhibited

More than 100 artworks by 50+ artists who are recipients of mental health services in Westchester County will be exhibited at ArtsWestchester from September 9-15. Visions 2016: Inner Thoughts, Outer Expressions, presented in partnership with Rockland Psychiatric Center, coincides with "Recovery Month." The creation of this artwork allowed these artists to tap into their imaginations, express their creativity and develop new skills. Exhibiting the works helps them to fully integrate into the community and show fellow residents that they are talented and capable. Visions is made possible by Westchester County's Department of Community Mental Health. An opening reception will take place on September 8.

Steffi Nossen Dance Appoints New Director

Steffi Nossen Dance Foundation (SNDF) recently appointed Shelley Grantham as its new Executive Director. Grantham brings to the role a combination of nonprofit dance management and a strong dance education background. Previously, she served more than 17 years at New York City's esteemed Peridance Capezio Center (PCC), where she held roles that included Youth Ensemble Director, during which she directed and coordinated all child-related programs and classes. As PCC's Outreach Director, she developed new programs and coordinated outreach efforts for Peridance's non-profit companies (Peridance Contemporary Dance Company and Peridance Youth Ensemble). In her new role at SNDF, Grantham aims to "inspire young creative artists in the world of dance." For more info, visit: steffinossen.org.

The Basics of Grant Writing

Jennie Greer

On Tuesday, September 20, ArtsWestchester will present "The Basics of Grant Writing," an informative workshop that is free and open to the public. The event will address general advice on grant writing, budgets and narrative, as well as the "do's and don'ts" of writing a competitive grant application. Guest speaker Jennie Greer is a freelance development consultant and Adjunct Lecturer in Fundraising for Brooklyn College's MFA Performing Arts Management program. The workshop will take place at 5:30pm in ArtsWestchester's building at 31 Mamaroneck Avenue in White Plains. RSVP is required by contacting Susan Abbott at sabbott@artswestchester.org or 914-428-4220 x304.

New Interim Executive Director at Youth Theatre Interactions

Youth Theatre Interactions, Inc. (YTI) has appointed Gary Betsworth as its Interim Executive Director. With more than 20 years in the performing arts and arts administration, Betsworth also brings his acting, writing and directing skills to the organization. He hopes to help YTI steer its ship through recent funding cutbacks from the county in a way that motivates students to foster creative expression. YTI offers classes in performing arts genres (see page A7) to youth aged 6-19. For more info, visit: ytiyonkers.org.

In Memoriam: Lawrence Salley

ArtsWestchester board member Lawrence Salley passed away recently. Along with many active roles in his community, highlights of his long and lustrous career included leadership positions as Deputy Commissioner of the Westchester County Department of Planning, as well as Commissioner of the Westchester County Department of Transportation. Previously the County's representative on ArtsWestchester's Board of Trustees, Salley was elected to its board following his retirement and became its Vice President shortly thereafter. He was an avid traveler, a lover of jazz and a gifted photographer. ArtsWestchester is planning an exhibition of his photographs to be held later this month.

New Murals Created for Housing Authority Building

Mural by Piero Manrique

ArtsWestchester recently completed the installation of two murals commissioned for The Prelude, a White Plains Housing Authority property. Artist Nick Kusyzk's colorful geometric designs wrap around the walls of the 9th floor community room. Piero Manrique's lively scene, depicting a diverse group of youth as they play in the landscape of their imagination, was created in the mailroom, which greets residents as they enter the building. ArtsWestchester works with residential buildings, schools, hospitals and local businesses to create a sense of community, enliven public spaces and ensure access to the arts for all residents in Westchester County.

Neiman Marcus Event to Feature On Site Painting

Neiman Marcus presents a Grand Re-opening of its White Plains store on September 15. The "Art of Fashion" event will include live painting by Westchester artist Antoinette Wysocki, whose White Plains studio is in ArtsWestchester's building. According to the artist, her colorful, active abstract paintings combine "various materials, chance, control and analysis." The painting that is produced during this event will later be auctioned off at ArtsWestchester's Nov. 19 gala, with proceeds benefitting the organization. For more information about Wysocki's work, visit: antoinettewysocki.com.

ART$WCHALLENGE
We will match your new gifts up to $5,000

Grant Matches Donations to Local Arts Organizations

ArtsWestchester announces its 2016 Art$WChallenge, which will raise awareness and much-needed funds for Westchester arts organizations this fall. Donations to any of the eligible 40+ organizations support cultural programs and services in Westchester. From September 15 through December 15, every new dollar donated (up to $5,000 per organization until all available funds have been allocated) will be matched by ArtsWestchester with support from the Westchester County Government. This funding opportunity is open to cultural organizations that received either a Basic Program Support or Project Support grant from ArtsWestchester in the past two years. In 2015, the Challenge grant leveraged over $312,000 in donations to participating groups. For more information or assistance, please call 914-428-4220 x304.

Become a Teaching Artist Application Deadline: September 30

Teaching Artist Marion Jones Archer at School 30 (photo credit: Hope Salley)

ArtsWestchester is now accepting applications for its teaching artists program. Through this program, the organization is committed to helping teaching artists grow by presenting an ongoing series of professional development training, networking opportunities and more. It is also committed to providing students with exposure to the arts and utilizing the arts to strengthen learning in curriculum subjects. For instance, Marion Jones Archer worked with students at School 30 in Yonkers to better understand their social studies curriculum through dance and movement that relate to important African American figures in U.S. history. Denise Bessette worked with recipients of Phelps Memorial Hospital's mental health services, integrating acting and writing skills in order to foster and expand modes of creative expression. Artists who are applying must have a proven track record of artistic achievement as well as the training and skills needed in order to bring learning to life through the arts in classrooms or human services sites. Professional artists who work in all fields and media are welcome to apply. The upcoming application deadline is September 30. For more info, visit: artsw.org/teachingartist.

Wells Fargo Supports Local Arts-in-Education Programs

ArtsWestchester CEO Janet Langsam recently accepted a $50,000 Wells Fargo grant check from board member and Wells Fargo Area President Maria Ferreira. Wells Fargo has been providing major support for arts-in-education for over ten years, steadily increasing its funding level to where it is today. This support enables ArtsWestchester to bring artists into under-resourced schools to stimulate learning of curriculum subjects.

New York Times Revamps Metro Section, Discontinues Regional Sections

Eighteen arts and business leaders from throughout the Tri-State area have urged The New York Times to find a way to continue its coverage of arts and culture in Westchester, Hudson Valley, Upstate New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Long Island. The call came following the announcement by The Times that it would no longer print the separate regional sections, which are carried as part of the Sunday Metropolitan edition. "Its decision to drop the section is troubling," said William Mooney, President and CEO of the Westchester County Association. He added: "It will negatively impact the hundreds of cultural, educational and recreational venues in Westchester County and its surrounding regions, that are contributing millions of dollars to our local economy." Kristina Newman-Scott, Executive Director of the Connecticut Office of the Arts & State Historic Preservation Office, echoed this theme: "This will have a devastating impact on our region."

"It will negatively impact the hundreds of cultural, educational and recreational venues ...which contribute millions of dollars to our local economy."

- William Mooney
President and CEO of the Westchester County Association

According to Janet Langsam, CEO of ArtsWestchester, today's cultural audiences "travel a two-way street" between New York City and the rest of the state: "That's because there has been an explosion of diverse, inclusive and exciting arts and culture in our region, not in small part due to The Times' coverage over the years." Elizabeth Reiss, CEO of the Arts Center of the Capital Region, makes the point that "New York City real estate prices have forced 'creatives' into upstate locations. The arts world beyond the five boroughs should not be ignored." Adam Perle, President & CEO of ArtPride New Jersey adds: "Regional arts coverage is vital to our industry."

"Loss of the Metro section will deprive loyal The New York Times readers of critical business and lifestyle information for Westchester County and the entire Hudson Valley," said Marsha Gordon, President of the Business Council of Westchester. Others expressing concern include: Barbaralee Diamondstein-Spielvogel, Chair of the New York State Council for the Arts; Nick Paleologos, Executive Director of the New Jersey Council for the Arts; and Theresa Statz-Smith, Executive Director of the Long Island Arts Alliance. As The New York Times made plans to revamp its coverage, news of these changes to the Metro Section were discussed in a blog on August 6 by Liz Spayd, The Times' Public Editor.

The Neuberger Museum of Art Brings Latin America to Purchase

Ceci n'est pas une voiture | (This is Not a Car) by Betsabeé Romero

In its current exhibition, Destination: Latin America, the Neuberger Museum of Art uses its important collection of Latin American art to showcase the key historical and artistic movements that influenced the displayed works. With more than 70 works on view through January 22, 2017, the exhibition discusses how political and world events have shaped and affected Latin American artists during the 20th and 21st centuries, and continue to do so today. It takes the visitor on a journey of the region's history, as told through the eyes of artists. Destination guides guests through the aftermath of the Mexican revolution of the 1910-20s, which altered creative output; the end of World War II, which inspired a generation's growing interest in abstraction; and the ways in which African art and traditions, when paired with Western practices, influenced new identities. It also looks at more recent times, when political turbulence in the 1960-80s challenged new art forms during a time of censorship and conservatism, and how current artists' creations have evolved from struggles with identity, violence and repression. Public programs associated with the exhibition include a gallery talk with Curator Patrice Giasson on Oct. 5, and with scholar Marianelly Neumann on Dec. 7. For more info, visit: neuberger.org.

Local Film Houses Celebrate Art House Theater Day

Jacob Burns Film Center (JBFC) and The Picture House (TPH) are two of 160 theaters participating in Art House Theater Day (AHTD), a nationwide celebration of film culture taking place on September 24. "AHTD is a chance to show film-lovers that their local theaters are part of a larger cultural movement," explains co-founder Gabriel Chicoine. These theaters support independent films, promote artistic and cultural diversity and function as economic drivers in their communities. JBFC's offerings include a selection of short films from the New York International Children's Film Festival; an advanced screening of documentary Danny Says; parts of the legendary The Dekalog series; and a 35th anniversary screening of Raiders of the Lost Ark, as well as hands-on activities and more. In Pelham, The Picture House will screen a variety of films, including Time Bandits, Brazil, the first in Terry Gilliam's Trilogy of Imagination and The Adventures of Baron Munchausen. All-Faculty Exhibition Views Today's Societal Issues Through Art

Riot Cop by David Fox

Westchester Community College Center for the Arts presents an all-faculty exhibition that explores the landscape of cultural, political and ethical concerns that plague today's societies around the globe. Curated by David Fox, The Issues looks at how art can focus the viewers' attention on problems of our time. From global warming and inequality to the threat of ISIS and corporate greed, exhibiting faculty members were asked to respond to any theme they feel passionate about. The resulting show speaks to human existence and peoples' impact on the world. Artists include painter David Fox, printmaker Bruce Waldman, ceramic artist Liz Insogna and graphic designer Stuart Vance. The Issues is on view from September 7 through October 31. An opening reception will take place on Wednesday, September 7. For more info, visit: sunywcc.edu/locations/arts.

Eight Artists Move On Site at the Katonah Museum of Art

Visitors of the Katonah Museum of Art (KMA) may wonder whether they have been transported to the future or to a previous era as they explore the Museum's new site-specific exhibition, On-Site Katonah. Eight artists were challenged to re-imagine the Museum's building and create experimental installations that respond to its distinctive landscape, architecture and history.

While museums typically provide artists with a theme for exhibitions, KMA intentionally gave each artist free reign over the museum, which developed into an array of distinct and otherworldly installations. "We wanted to see how the artists would organically and intuitively react to the museum," explains KMA's Associate Curator Elizabeth Rooklidge. As a result, a crystal sculpture, placed on a 6-foot-tall pile of gravel, encapsulates hidden drawings; bubble-like islands are illuminated by LED lights; and mirror sculptures adorning the museum's lawn reflect the guests' distorted reflections. On-Site Katonah is on view now through October 2. For more info, visit: katonahmuseum.org.

this will be the first exhibition that I am aware of in Westchester that displays the work of contemporary tattoo artists." Selected pieces include illustration, photography, sculpture, mixed media and more, while subject matter varies, as it does in most forms of art – from faces and butterflies to landscapes and abstract designs. Live demonstrations, to be announced, will take place throughout the run of the exhibition. An opening reception will take place on the evening of September 8. For more info, visit: bluedoorartcenter.org.

From September 8 through October 8, Blue Door Art Center (BDAC) presents Tattoo: Off the Body, an exhibition that celebrates the love and artistic value of tattoos. For this exhibition, BDAC invited tattoo artists to submit works of varying media that were created for the human body. The result is a wide range of artworks that are displayed both on and off the body. "The tattoo culture never seems to make its way into art galleries," says BDAC Director Luis Perelman. From Jazz to Scapes Through Michael Baumann's Eyes

After a career in commercial photography, Michael Baumann has taken the time to appreciate the small moments in life: from the streets of New York City to nature's landscapes. For his most recent series, Baumann attends performances in late-night jazz "dives" in Harlem, which allows him to capture musicians in their element – away from the limelight and attention. This work, presented by Harrison Council for the Arts, will be on display in From Jazz to Scapes in the Halperin Building at Harrison Public Library this month. As Baumann is often close to the performers, his photographs represent personal and intimate moments, as well as raw emotions that are shown through abstraction, contrast and drama. Through his artistic process, Baumann not only photographs these moments, he experiences them. Through September 30, his viewers can experience them as well. For more info, visit: harrisonpl.org.

Katonah Poetry Series Celebrates 50 Years, Launches New Season

For the past half-century, in the intimate setting of the Katonah Public Library, personal stories have been told, poems read aloud and inspirations abound. The Katonah Poetry Series (KPS), one of the oldest in the country, celebrates its 50-year anniversary this season, which boasts a diverse lineup for the fall and spring. Each season, the Series offers a varied collection of readers – some poets are emerging and some are nationally acclaimed, but all have already shown literary excellence through publication, awards and how they reach out to the public. Sixteen Pulitzer Prize-winners and nine Poets Laureate of the United States have been among former participating authors, including two-time U.S. Poet Laureate Billy Collins, who is one of KPS's Poetry Advisors.

Discussing the future of the Series, Co-Poetry Advisor Dr. Leisha Douglas expressed that, aside from maintaining a high quality of readers, her goal is “for people to see poetry as a comforting hand, a balm, and to not be intimidated by it.” As an example, she recalled an event that was scheduled shortly after the September 11 attacks. After KPS decided not to cancel it, approximately 100 people attended, many later expressing how helpful and consoling the experience was. She added: “Our goal is always to reach out to our community.”

This season, KPS brings to the community Kathleen Ossip, a cutting-edge experimental poet (September 25); Paul Muldoon, whose classic narrative is within the Irish tradition (November 20); and lyrical poet Kimiko Hahn (March 26). On May 13, KPS celebrates its anniversary when Billy Collins takes the stage for a reading before joining a panel wherein he, and a group of other poets who have participated in the Series, will discuss “50 Years of American Poetry.” A book-signing reception, as well as a Q&A that gives readers a broader view of the poet's life and inspirations, will follow each event. Arts Alive Grants Available for Artists and Emerging Arts Groups

ArtsWestchester is now accepting applications from non-profit arts organizations and individual artists in Westchester for 2017 Arts Alive Grants. These grants are designed to help make vibrant arts and cultural activities easily accessible to a wide community audience, particularly in areas where access is limited. Past grants have helped to support programs such as affordable theatrical performances, public murals, outdoor cultural festivals and more.

Funds are available in two categories: Arts Alive Project Grants provide financial support for a range of projects that demonstrate a strong community benefit. Arts Alive Artist Grants provide direct support to artists for the creation of new work related to the community.

The application deadline for this year's Arts Alive grants is October 4, 2016. For guidelines and workshop details, visit: artsw.org/artsalive.

september arts festivals

As the weather shifts to an autumn breeze, it is the perfect time to “fall into the arts.” Arts festivals arise from all corners of the county as Westchester residents and visitors enjoy one-of-a-kind works of art, family activities and craft demonstrations. The following fall arts festivals start the season off right.

September 3-5 | Cornucopia

This Labor Day weekend, Philipsburg Manor in Sleepy Hollow presents Cornucopia, a celebration of all things related to corn. Guests will join in participatory activities like barn dancing, corn-husk doll making and games. Artists will be creating scarecrows for a display at this fall's The Great Jack O'Lantern Blaze, for which visitors can create accessories that will be displayed in the Blaze. Corn-based foods, from corn muffins to sweet corn ice cream, will be available, and live bluegrass and folk music can be heard throughout the day. hudsonvalley.org

September 10 | Yonkers Riverfest

Presented by the Yonkers Downtown Waterfront BID, the 24th annual Yonkers Riverfest has announced a jam-packed lineup for this year's festivities. Five stages along the Yonkers downtown waterfront will host 25 live performances, including Scott Helman, the teen sensation that Teen Vogue named the #1 Breakout Artist of 2016, hip-hop legends Brand Nubian and Latin sensation Tito Puente Jr. Additional attractions include inflatable slides and castles, a kid-centric stage, dancing, exhibitions and more. yonkersdowntown.com

September 10 | Take Me to the River

The 9th annual Take Me to the River Music and Arts Festival, organized by 12MilesNorth, presents local, regional and national music acts at Draper Park in Hastings-on-Hudson. This year's headliner, Simone Felice founded The Felice Brothers and co-wrote The Lumineers' Cleopatra album. The lineup also includes rising Nashville stars Vanderveer, Holy Ghost Tent Revival and more. Attendees can also explore large site-specific installations, a jazz brunch hour, an interactive children's area and a craft beer garden. 12milesnorth.nyc

September 17 | Croton-on-Hudson Fall Arts Festival

Guests attending the Croton-on-Hudson Fall Arts Festival at Senasqua Park will enjoy views of the Hudson River and live music as they discover works of sculpture, crafters, photographers and more by local artists. The festival is co-presented by the village of Croton-on-Hudson and the Croton Council on the Arts. crotonarts.org

September 18 | The White Plains Hispanic Festival

For more than 15 years, the White Plains Hispanic Day Parade and Festival has presented an energetic celebration of Hispanic culture in White Plains. This year's festival brings live music, ethnic foods, performers and artists that represent Spanish and Portuguese-speaking countries to the grounds of Eastview Middle School. whiteplainshispanicdayparade.com

September 24 & 25 | Armonk Outdoor Art Show

For the 55th year, the Armonk Outdoor Art Show will display top offerings in fine art and design. The array of diverse artwork by more than 185 juried local and global artists features varied media, from painting and photography to sculpture and printmaking. The show, which benefits the North Castle Public Library and its Whippoorwill Hall Theater, also provides guided artist tours, a food court and kid-friendly activities. The Show takes place at 205 Business Park Drive. armonkoutdoorartshow.org

September 16-18 | Crafts at Lyndhurst

For the past 30+ years, on the historic grounds of the Lyndhurst mansion, artists and designers have come together to celebrate all things handmade. With 300+ modern American craftspeople, both emerging and experienced, display their one-of-a-kind creations in genres ranging from sculpture, paintings, wearable art, furniture and more. Guests dance to live music, watch demonstrations and participate in arts workshops such as pottery and wood-turning. Children's activities make the day appropriate for the whole family with face painting, storytelling and stilt walkers. Guests can make the most of their day by wandering the grounds and taking a tour of the mansion. lyndhurst.org

September 20-25 | White Plains Jazz Fest

This festival, presented by ArtsWestchester, The City of White Plains and the White Plains Business Improvement District, is a six-day celebration of jazz in multiple locations in downtown White Plains. Fifteen free and affordable jazz-inspired events explore rhythms from Brazil, Africa, New Orleans. The week culminates in a full-day outdoor Jazz & Food Festival along Mamaroneck Avenue on Sunday, September 25th. For more information and a full schedule, see page A15. artsw.org/jazzfest

September 24 | Harbor Island International Beer Fest

The 3rd annual Harbor Island International Beer Fest, hosted by Half Time Beverage, features 200 domestic and international breweries that will present hundreds of craft beers, ciders and sodas, from KY Bourbon Ale (from Alltech) to Honey Blueberry Ale (from Bull and Barrell). Artists will provide guests with the opportunity to “sip and paint” during the festivities. Guests will also enjoy live music and artisanal foods while they sample the top brews. The event, which is part of ArtsWestchester’s Arts & Craft Beer Fest, takes place at Hudson Island Park, with a view of the Long Island Sound and Hudson River. harborislandbeerfestival.com

September 23-25 | New Rochelle ArtsFest 2016

Organized by New Rochelle Council on the Arts, ArtsFest offers exhibitions and family-friendly arts activities that, with more than 34 participating venues, showcases the rich cultural diversity throughout New Rochelle and Pelham. A new collaboration with YoFiFest kicks off the weekend on September 23 with a free drive-in movie in Hudson Park. The weekend continues with a wide variety of activities, from a classic car show and LEGO® Day, but the arts are front and center as artists open their studios and exhibitions pop up at various locations, including Rotunda Gallery, Iona College, Jolo’s, New Rochelle Public Library. Former Alvin Ailey Dance Theater principal dancer Donna Wood Sanders presents a “DanceFest” performance on Saturday afternoon. Pelham Art Center offers interactive activities all weekend, like glass-blowing demonstration, still-life painting and mixed-media projects. The Lincoln Avenue Arts & Culture Fest offers demos, food and live music. To provide visitors with the convenient access to the activities offered, a free “New Rochelle Culture Trolley” provides hop-on,-hop-off access to various participating institutions. newrochellearts.org

Jazz Fest Brings International Artists to Downtown White Plains

This September, the White Plains Jazz Fest will delight audiences with sounds from around the world without having to leave downtown White Plains. A range of sounds, including the rousing beats of Brazil, the smooth jazz of New Orleans and rhythmic beats of Africa, will take over the city from September 20-25. Presented by ArtsWestchester, the City of White Plains and White Plains BID, this six-day celebration of jazz kicks off at Gaucho Grill for an Opening Reception on Sept. 20 with trumpeter and flugelhornist Mark Morganelli.

Audiences are invited to enjoy a lineup of free and affordable events that includes accomplished and emerging artists: Music Conservatory of Westchester's Jazz Faculty Ensemble presents a noontime respite at Grace Church (Sept. 21) and a jazz workshop on Sept. 22; acclaimed guitarist Gil Parris will play blues as part of a "Downtown White Plains Jazz Stroll" that offers live music at three local restaurants throughout the night on Sept. 22; award-winning saxophone master Gary Smulyan and his quartet bring their soulful jazz performance to ArtsWestchester (Sept. 23). On Sept. 24, Source International African Jazz Band takes the stage in ArtsWestchester's gallery for two sets, and the White Plains Performing Arts Center hosts a Louis Armstrong and Ella Fitzgerald tribute on 9/24 (special offers are available for guests who attend both shows).

The festival culminates in a free outdoor celebration of international music and food along Mamaroneck Avenue on September 25. Audiences are invited to dance along with live performances throughout the day, including Baby Soda, Joy Boykin, Mayra Casales, Bob Baldwin & Friends with Wali Ali, Awa Sangho and more.

CURTIS

This ad is not about us. At Curtis we are still not trying to sell you something. As a highly specialized engineering company and manufacturer of electric vehicle control systems and instrumentation, we don't sell to the public. We've been in Mount Kisco since 1960, and we are good community neighbors, a company worth knowing. We hope that you will also get to know the Community Center of Northern Westchester, a local non-profit organization—because caring is good, but helping is better.

It's about community

community center of northern westchester

The Community Center of Northern Westchester in Katonah, NY, significantly improves the well-being and self-sufficiency of neighbors in need by sharing the essentials of living: food, clothing, health programs and classes to enhance employment opportunities. 35% of those served are food insecure children. Volunteers and donors with hearts of gold help this remarkable organization touch the lives of many. In 2015, the Center made a difference for 2,000 families in 38 communities. They do more than help in the present—they develop a better future.
