Music in the Air with Jenie Thai at Lyndhurst
As the weather heats up and the days grow longer, we begin to search for ways to fill our summer, exploring all that our beautiful County has to offer. There are dozens of inspired opportunities to explore the arts in every corner of Westchester and, with ArtsWestchester serving as our partner, the possibilities for creativity and culture are endless. From dance and theater to visual art and music, there is a vast array of arts organizations showcasing many disciplines and talents.

Let ArtsNews serve as your guide to the arts and culture. I invite you to keep track of upcoming arts and cultural programs in your neighborhood by browsing the articles and calendars on these pages, such as:

- Hudson River Museum’s centennial (A3, 4)
- a directory of affordable outdoor summer events (A6)
- a new public art project at Rye Playland (A10)

There are so many new exhibits, performances and workshops to enjoy all summer long. I certainly hope you will take some time to enjoy the arts.

Thank you,
George Latimer

Artsw.org (artsw.org), your guide to arts and culture in Westchester County, NY, is published by ARTSWESTCHESTER, a private, not-for-profit organization established in 1965. The largest of its kind in New York State, it serves more than 150 cultural organizations, numerous school districts, hundreds of artists, and audiences numbering more than one million. The goal of ArtsWestchester is to ensure the availability, accessibility, and diversity of the arts in Westchester.
A RIVER RUNS TWO WAYS

What’s it like to have a river in your backyard? It’s inspirational, according to Masha Turchinsky, the Yonkers native and Executive Director of the Hudson River Museum. Perched at the Museum, one can look out and gaze at the mighty Hudson, whose presence continues to fuel the museum’s mission.

Up until the 16th century, the Hudson River was known as Mahicantuck, the river that flows two ways. This idea has become a mantra of sorts for the Museum’s closeness with its diverse community. “It’s important for local residents to see themselves on these gallery walls…to participate in the give and take of ideas, to connect to each other and to nature through the continuum of arts, science and history,” says Turchinsky, who values this collaborative identity.

The Museum was started in 1919 by a diverse group of artists and patrons in a small office at City Hall in Yonkers. Later, the City acquired Glenview Mansion as a home for the Museum, which added new contemporary galleries, acquired a collection of 25,000 fine art and historical objects, built a state-of-the-art planetarium, welcomed 75,000 annual visitors, initiated programs for all ages and, in short, earned the mantle of a leading regional institution in the galaxy of preeminent cultural institutions. Now, as it celebrates its Centennial year and sets a course for the future, the Museum is thinking locally but acting globally, aiming to be part of the national conversation on such worldly topics as climate change, social justice and the future of the universe. This is a big agenda for a small but nimble museum. But, like the great river in their name, they are in constant motion, testing their boundaries.

MUST-SEE PUBLIC ART: MAMARONECK

Local nonprofit Street Art for Mankind (SAM) produces public art in service of promoting social change by collaborating with street artists on dramatic multi-story murals. A collection of these murals were recently unveiled in Mamaroneck. All within walking distance apart, they collectively celebrate the history of, and promote the values of, this town.

The organization’s projects “emphasize the DNA of a community,” explains SAM Co-Founder Thibault Decker: “Through the universal language of art, we start a conversation encouraging people to walk the streets and rediscover their village.”

One work by international street artist Loic Ercolessi depicts the town’s iconic Skinny House. The vivid purple mural portrays the historic 10-foot-wide home, carpenter Nathan Thomas Seely, and the neighbor who gave him the property on which to build. The photo-realistic mural, located across from the Mamaroneck train station at 135 Hoyt Avenue, captures the spirit of community between neighbors.

A light blue tableau situated behind Mamaroneck Avenue on Phillips Park Road depicts portraits of actors Lily Gish, Ethel Barrymore and Matt Dillon – the Mamaroneck natives, generations apart, all went on to successful careers in film. The colorful style, which its London-based artist Mr. Cenz dubbed “futuristic space funk,” presents a dreamy, Rushmore-esque scene to passersby.

Mamaroneck is home to five Street Art for Mankind murals located on Mamaroneck Avenue, Phillips Park Road and Hoyt Avenue.

Museums have been many things to many people. Traditionally, they have been collectors and interpreters of our shared heritage. However, their role has changed dramatically in recent decades as a new wave of purpose has swept over museums in America, giving them stature as community and regional assets. Perhaps the public thirst for identity has given rise to institutions that dare to be less institutional, mirroring who their peeps are and how they self-identify. Thus the story of the Hudson River Museum (HRM) in its Centennial year is one of a museum... returning to its roots in the community, broadly writ, recognizing that what ends up on its walls can reflect its audience at the same time that it provides deep learning experiences. It’s all about community enrichment and conversation.

Many museums get their first burst of life from ordinary citizens, as did the HRM. Artists and community members created the museum in a room at City Hall and aspirationally called it the Yonkers Museum. Its mission was collecting contributions of art, history and science artifacts for display. As the collection grew, the City purchased the historic Glenview mansion as HRM’s first permanent home. Over many years, the museum’s growth could be measured in its collection of 25,000 objects and its presentation of groundbreaking contemporary art exhibitions. Along the way, the museum embraced the history and ecology of the Hudson River, giving the museum the lofty name that identifies it with the “Great River.” HRM became a major partner with the Yonkers School District, supporting a museum school and its well-known Junior Docent Program that creates opportunities for skill based leaning.

It is clear too, that museums of today are becoming multi-disciplined, embracing music, poetry and theater arts to amplify the visual representations — basically doing what artists are doing — crossing the lines. Music has become a major theme at the HRM, finding its way into the Planetarium and beaming music from center stage at the new amphitheater. Much integration is going on between arts, history and science departments — for example, the Planetarium staff is curating lunar exhibitions and the Glenview staff is presenting a script-in-hand performance of Ibsen’s The Doll House. It’s a vision that brings all of these many strands together. “We are living in a time when people want to be seen and heard,” says HRM Executive Director Masha Turchinsky. “We are trying to fill that need in a nuanced way by looking at issues with fresh eyes. In so doing, I think we are teaching empathy.” And that’s a beautiful thing.

JULY 18: MILOŠ KARADAGLIĆ
CARAMOOR CENTER FOR MUSIC AND THE ARTS

Caramoor is the place to be this July. Bring your guitar player to hear the real deal! There is nothing quite as breathtakingly exquisite as classical guitar, the earliest form of guitar music. The guitar is by now the most popular instrument in the world, but classical guitar, one of its most sophisticated and beautiful expressions, draws the smallest audience. Not for long. Along comes a young virtuoso from Montenegro, simply known by his first name Miloš, ready to change all that. He’s just 36 years young, handsome and swift on the fretboard, and suddenly everything changes. He’s making the classical guitar cool again and many burgeoning guitarists would do well to sit at his feet to hear how a guitar can sing when in the hands of a true maestro. He studied at the famed Royal Academy of Music in London and has played the best stages of the world, including Carnegie Hall. The New York Times said he is “One of the most exciting and communicative classical guitarists today.”

This is his debut at Caramoor, and the performance is part of the sunken garden recital series aptly called “Guitar in The Gardens.”

BBC Music Magazine named Miloš as one of the “champions of the classical guitar who have shaped its sound in the last century.” A good one not to miss.

The affordable program promises to be thrilling, bringing you a world-class player: J.S. Bach’s Suite in C Minor, BWV 997, Prelude and Fuge; Granados’s Oriental and Anda-luza; De Falla’s Danza del molinero from “El Sombrero de Tres Picos”; a selection of works from Villa Lobos; and Domeniconi’s Koyunbaba.

Art on the Beach

A funhouse won’t be the only immersive experience at Playland Park this summer. Public art is coming to the Park. A list of ten finalists was recently announced for a temporary interactive art installation on the boardwalk of Rye Beach at Playland Park. The art, which has yet to be announced, will fill up a storefront space of the north bathhouse. The art is being installed in a space that has been unoccupied for a decade.

The call for proposals by ArtsWestchester, Westchester County and the Westchester Parks Foundation yielded 54 submissions by artists and arts groups from all corners of the Hudson Valley and greater New York City Metropolitan area.

Westchester County Executive George Latimer said: “I have long been committed to the arts. I know firsthand the transformative powers of the arts and that’s why it was so important to me to bring an art installation to Playland for the public to enjoy. Art on the boardwalk is a natural fit, and I’m thrilled that it is happening this season. I want to thank ArtsWestchester for working on this project for the County, and I want to thank the Westchester County Parks Foundation for financially supporting art on the beach.”

The Art on the Beach initiative is a pilot for a future series of creative interventions at the park. It aims to infuse more public art experiences into the Playland’s ever-growing list of attractions. Artists drew inspiration from many sources in their proposals for the 700+ square foot space that overlooks the Long Island Sound. Some were inspired by Playland’s historic Dragon Coaster, famously featured in Mariah Carey’s Fantasy video; others reminisced about the hand-carved horses on the Park’s carousel, currently under restoration after a 2017 fire; and some artists desired to raise awareness about plastic waste and environmental preservation with the use of recycled materials.

Designated as finalists for the commission were Natalya Aikens and Kate Dodd, Isabelle Garbani, Tatjana Kunst, Piero Manrique, Robotic Music/Kurt Coble, Ivy Naté, Elizabeth Newsomes and Michael Zelelewski, Shelley Parriott, Aga Ratajska/AGA WAGA, and Stephanie Wenzel. The winning work will be unveiled in early July.
A DOG’S JOURNEY (2019)

It’s a good thing the movie theatre was completely empty when we saw this film (one other couple came later), because my husband Eli and I were both bawling our eyes out over this poignant, sad/happy, heartwrenching film. It was especially emotional because a granddaughter and her dog were together throughout the girl’s life journey as well as the dog’s. When the movie was over, we cried some more as we said goodbye to the Greenburgh Multiplex Cinemas, which closed later that week. We enjoyed many movies there over the years.

MUCH ADO ABOUT SHAKESPEARE

Westchester County will have an abundance of the Bard this summer as two theater companies, LawnChair Theatre and Hudson Valley Shakespeare Festival (HVSF), present Shakespeare classics in the Park. For those who want to tickle their funny bone, LawnChair’s production of Much Ado About Nothing will take the stage in Chappaqua (7/19), Rye (7/18, 26, 27) and Rye Brook (7/20, 25) in partnership with Rye Arts Center. An additional staging, presented by New Rochelle Council on the Arts, will take place on July 21. Mistaken identity, unrequited love and deception are at the forefront in this comedy. For those in a more serious tenor, loyalty and honor take center stage in HVSF’s Julius Caesar. The drama will take place in Yonkers (presented by Hudson River Museum on 7/6 and Untermyer Performing Arts on 7/27), White Plains (presented by ArtsWestchester and the City of White Plains on 7/11) and Mamaroneck (Mamaroneck Arts Council, 8/3). ArtsWestchester and Westchester County Government have a long and impressive history together. Since 1975, they have partnered on a grants process that is equitable and impartial, similar to ones used by both state and federal agencies in which ArtsWestchester convenes outside panels made up of arts professionals to review grant requests. Together, the partners are pleased to announce a first round of $883,420 grants to 66 organizations and six individual artists. A second round of challenge grants will be announced later in the year.

These grants are funded by Westchester County government, administered by ArtsWestchester, and are emblematic of the County’s support of its cultural industry. This year, seven new organizations entered the funding pool, adding new programs to the broad menu of cultural activities that are available to County residents:

Bethany Arts Community in Ossining provides a space in which creatives can work together as a community to foster and nurture new ideas. Its six-week multidisciplinary residency will bring more than 30 artists from a range of disciplines together to engage with the general public through free programming such as workshops and artist talks.

Chappaqua Orchestra’s ensemble of professional-level artists will present two concerts with guest conductors. One will celebrate the Orchestra’s 60-year history and the other will highlight significant women composers from around the world.
Rehabilitation Through the Arts works with prison communities by using creative arts programming to prepare its inmates with the tools needed for success after their release. The program for which they were funded is a full-scale performance of the musical 1776 at Sing Sing Correctional Facility. The production will be performed twice for the prison population and once for community guests.

Westchester Collaborative Theater is a theater company that is dedicated to developing and staging new work from the very beginning and through the entire creative process. A play-reading series will present three staged readings of new work, each one developed by a different subset—students, seniors and people of color.

YoFi Annual Film Festival offers independent film screenings, as well as educational workshops and networking events that allow audiences the opportunity to see movies that likely wouldn’t be offered anywhere else.

Career Visions was funded for the My Brother’s Keeper Mural Project, which will produce a series of mural painting workshops for Yonkers boys, from grades K-12, and their fathers. The end goal will be the creation of a mural titled My Brother’s Keeper in outdoor Yonkers.

Yonkers Arts celebrates the plentiful arts offerings throughout the City of Yonkers by creating a network of artists and art groups. The Carpet Mills Arts Festival (CMAF), for which it was funded, gives a platform to the artists of the YOHO Open Studios during a larger citywide Yonkers Arts Weekend event. CMAF will present outdoor performances, interactive experiences and more.
Local artists and arts groups with creative ideas for new art projects in Westchester and Rockland Counties are encouraged to apply for a 2020 Arts Alive grant. Imagine being transported to Asia by attending a festival of traditional music and dance, getting a front row seat to the premiere of a new independent film, or reliving your favorite play at a nearby theater. Funding from New York State Council on the Arts’ Decentralization Program enables ArtsWestchester to make these types of arts activities easily accessible to all Westchester and Rockland residents, especially in areas where access is limited.

Grants are awarded in three categories: Project Grants provide financial support for projects that demonstrate a strong community benefit; Artist Grants provide direct support for the creation of new work related to the community; and Education Grants support in-school and after-school learning projects. A series of pre-application workshops are available throughout the summer to assist interested applicants. To schedule a one-on-one meeting, visit calendly.com/artswgrants/2020. Upcoming workshops include:

- July 10: Blue Door Art Center (Yonkers), 5:30pm
- July 18: New City Library (New City), 10am
- July 23: Dobbs Ferry Public Library (Dobbs Ferry), 5:30pm
- July 25: Arts Council of Rockland (Garnerville), 5:30pm
- August 1: Bethany Arts Community (Ossining), 6pm
- August 8: Pelham Art Center (Pelham), 10am
- August 14: Rockland Music Conservatory (Pearl River), 10am

Application deadlines are September 18 in Westchester County and October 2 in Rockland County.
